ASKED TO QUIT.

I. James Ousted From Board Of Safety.

Louisville Talking About Speed's Friendship.

Lid Being Tilted With Great Regularity.

SUNDAY CLOSING ALMOST A JOKE.

(Special Correspondence.)

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—It has been given out that R. I. James, "Dick," for short, is to retire from the Board of Public Safety in Louisville about July 15. Dick has said himself that he would leave the board at that time "because he finds the duties of the board interfere with his duties with the Belknap Hardware & Manufacturing Company." Now, wouldn't that jar you? Of course, Richard had no idea how urgent his duties with the hardware company were when he took the sinecure at the City Hall. It's an old story—that resigning a fat, leisurely, political plum pudding because other duties require more attention. But, as a rule, something else is behind such resignations. Naturally. In this case, I understand, Mr. James was asked to resign by one no more in authority than Mayor Grinstead. It seems that Mr. James was too good a friend of Capt. Pope Speed, who was forced to resign under charges from the Board of Public Safety that he was protecting gambling and bawdy houses in the red light district, and that he was receiving bribes from red light sources.

Now, Richard was Pope Speed's particular friend. Speed was advanced from detective to captain of police so rapidly that it would make a man's head swim. Pope was using the city's vehicles and horses to take his family out riding on Sundays, by special permit from Dick. He was very busy with the city's equipage the night before the notorious Republican primary in April, the most outrageous ever conducted in this city, according to the Republicans themselves. Mr. James was such a good friend of Speed's that he didn't want the grand jury to investigate the Speed doings in the red light.

I understand that, after all the hullabaloo was raised about Speed, Marshal Bullitt, chairman of the board, wanted James to get out of the board, and I have heard that he threatened to resign himself unless James did so. It was then that the Mayor, so I am told, asked Mr. James if his private affairs weren't so onerous as to compel him to give all his attention to them. Mr. James didn't think they were at first, and when it was published in one of the papers here that Mr. James was about to leave the board, some of his yawping friends mounted their hind legs and let out an awful roar. Simultaneously with Mr. James' discovery later that the hardware business was picking up, "his goats" made the same discovery and it was officially announced that he would retire.

Now, the whole affair smells to me like a stench, from a source, too, where the public was led to believe, during a violent campaign, that there was naught but rose water. The public was told that the Republicans had an exclusive franchise on all the morality that was floating in Louisville, and they persisted so in these claims that they actually had some of the good people down here believing it. It would be difficult to find a more disgusted lot than those who were bamboozled into thinking that the Republicans were honest when they announced that they proposed to give Louisville a clean administration.

And while I am talking about honest

Republican administrations in Louisville, it would be well to call attention to the Sunday closing laws. There are many of the saloon-keepers down here honestly observing the law and the regulations. There are others who do a bigger business on Sunday than they do on any other day, but certain of these the police never discover. With a great flourish of trumpets, Chief of Police Haager announced a week or two ago that each policeman would be held responsible for all saloons on his beat, and that if it was shown that saloons were doing business on Sundays on their beats, the patrolmen would walk the plank. I observe that a number of saloon keepers were arrested last Sunday charged with keeping their saloons open. Since then I have seen no indications of policemen out of jobs. One detective who has been especially active has been advanced in rank for his work as an example, it was said by the big wigs of the department. A cute trick to make the public forget the grand stand declaration that saloon-blind policemen were to be given the finger. It all looks to me as if the Holier-Than-Thou Republicans were laying the foundation for a fine bit of election machinery, to which the immune saloon-keepers and the police favorites are two valuable cogs.

The Democratic hosts are gathering in Louisville, preparatory to setting out for Denver. They will stop by Lincoln for a visit to the sage of Fairview. I hear little gossip as to the members of the different committees from Kentucky. The most important, of course, is the Committee on Resolutions, and I hear the names of Senator James B. McCreary and Col. W. B. Haldeman mentioned for the place.

By the way, did you read Marse Henry on Parker in this morning's Courier-Journal? You did? Well, wasn't it a scorcher? Weren't they a few incongruous remarks—a few words with the bark on—a few parts of speech and Democracy untrifled and undefiled all rolled into one? For powerful invective, rapier-like satire, and bludgeon blows of truth, Mr. Waterson himself never wrote anything to surpass it. Larded into the formidable roast is the following bit of real news:

"The stolen money represented by these men has been for three months percolating where the rogues behind it could be used to buy the instruments of their scheme to make the Democratic party a brevet Republican party. Some of it was here in Kentucky. Some of it went to Alabama. It was largely the knowledge of this corruption fund, and its plan and object, which carried the Courier-Journal to Mr. Bryan.

THE INSIDER.

SPECIAL SUIT FOR CONVICTED RIDER.

DR. E. CHAMPION TOO BIG TO WEAR ORDINARY PRISON STRIPES.

Dr. E. Champion, convicted of night riding in connection with the Birmingham raid on March 9, arrived at the Eddyville penitentiary Thursday, having been refused a new trial by Judge Reed. He was escorted by Pete Ely, sheriff of Marshall county, together with Lon Holly, who was given ten years for killing Reese Fisher. Dr. Champion was allowed to come without handcuffs, and the sheriff said he would have trusted him to come alone, unguarded. He was received at 10 o'clock, and there being no prison clothes large enough for him, he was allowed to retain his business suit until a special order can be filled.

His assignment is the place of assistant to the cell clerk and his special duties will have reference to the mails. The attorneys in the case will prosecute an appeal from Judge Reed's ruling, and express confidence in obtaining a reversal, but in the meantime the prisoner will be making time on his sentence and in the ordinary course half his time will have been served out before a decision can be reached.

James H. Dilger has bought a lot, 40 by 150 feet, at Fourth and Steele streets, and on Thursday began the erection of a handsome six-room cottage, in which he will make his residence. He paid $1,200 for the lot, which shows Frankfort property is expensive.

BIG BOOST

Given The Manufacturers Of Straight Whiskies.

Government Enforces New Food Regulations.

Franklin County Interested In The Rules.

BIG DEMAND FOR BOTTLED IN BOND

Straight whisky, such as is made in this county and which is the only kind made here, is at a premium now, and there is a big boost in the business of the distillers since the United States Government has begun to enforce strictly the proper branding of liquors under the last pure food law. This law requires all liquor to be labeled according to what it really is, and the rectifiers and those who have been adulterating whisky have been shoved into the background. The following dispatch from Washington to the Courier-Journal is of interest to Franklin county, where there are many distilleries:

After defeating an attempted injunction by the rectifiers, blenders and compounders of imitation whisky in the United States District Court at Cincinnati, at a late hour last night, the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department is today in full swing putting into effect the branding regulations scheduled for operation throughout the United States on this opening day of the new fiscal year.

In seventy internal revenue collection districts, spreading throughout some fifty States and Territories, the vast army of Government gaugers located at over 2,000 rectifying, compounding and blending houses, are acting under orders from nearly a hundred collectors, and are marking and branding the heads of barrels into which mixtures, blends and compounds are drawn with the prescribed words of "blend," "compound," or "imitation," as the case may be, in strict accordance with the requirements of the Federal pure food law as construed by the now celebrated "What Is Whisky?" opinion of Attorney General Bonaparte, and the rulings made thereunder by President Roosevelt in support of the views for which Dr. Wiley has become known all over the country.

The neutral spirit makers and blenders have fought the new regulations with great bitterness. In striking contrast to those interests, the Government's views have been enthusiastically approved and supported by the straight whisky distillers. These straight whisky distillers can continue under the pure food law and the internal revenue regulations, labelling their product as whisky, as they have always done, it being the natural, unadulterated article to which Attorney General Bonaparte has restricted the application of the unqualified term "whisky."

Since the pure food agitation began the business of the straight whisky distillers has returned to approximately the large volume in which it was distributed before the day of the rectifier and blender. The most conspicuous increase in the sale of straight whisky has been in connection with the bottling in bond feature.

Four years ago, less than a million gallons of whisky went out to the public under the Government's green guarantee stamp protecting it from adulteration. The figures for the years just closed will show that over 5,000,000 gallons have been bottled in bond within the last twelve months. Only three States—Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Maryland—recorded bottling in bond operations a few years back, while now whisky is being put under the green stamp in over fifteen different States. Rectifying or blending operations are today carried on in forty different States and Territories, the 114,000,000 gallons of the rectified or blended product put out last year, New York supplied 20,000,000 to the market. Ohio came second, and Illinois Third. Georgia produced 1,000,000 gallons of so-called blends just before going prohibition.

Strike Fine Spring On Elkhorn Creek.

SPLENDID FLOW OF CLEAR, COLD WATER AT FRANKFORT DISTILLING CO.

While excavating for a pool at the Frankfort Distilling Co.'s plant on Elkhorn, the other day, a stream of water as large as a man's leg, clear and pure and with a steady temperature of 56 degrees, was struck, entirely unexpectedly. The pool was being made for the storage of water at the Baker distillery and the spring which has always been used was being carefully guarded, it being the intention to fill the pool from this spring. The pool is a large one and is 20 feet deep. To get the proper depth it was necessary to blast out the rock in one end and when a charge of dynamite was set off the big stream of water gushed up from the rocks.

The new spring is one of the finest in the State. The water is from a limestone formation and is absolutely pure. It flows with some force and shows no signs of diminution. As the water in Kentucky is what makes Kentucky whisky different from any other whisky the spring at the Baker distillery is invaluable.

FRANKFORT MECCA FOR THE TOURISTS.

Strangers Roam Over Old And New Capitol.

All Want To See Place Geobel Fell.

STONE MARKER IN WRONG PLACE.

The new capitol is a strong drawing card to bring people to Frankfort, and hardly a day passes but one can see tourists roaming around over the old and the new State house. The visitors never neglect the old capitol, but it is the new capitol which lures them and they go away from here greatly pleased, and all saying that Kentucky has a capitol of which every person in the State might well be proud. Nearly every week for the last two months there have been excursions, run by some Sunday school or church which have brought hundreds of persons here from all over the State, and it has done much for business in Frankfort. The favorite place for the tourists, though, is the place where Geobel fell, and the stone that marks the spot, or, rather, which is supposed to mark the spot, but which misses it several feet, is always carefully examined. Everybody who comes here for the first time stands on it and usually goes into the Secretary of State's office to squint out the window along the line to the old hackberry tree which has become a part of Kentucky history.

In the pavement which leads to the State house is a stone marker, which is supposed to designate the place where Geobel fell. It was put there by the old custodian of the State house grounds. He was worried by the hundreds of people who wanted to be shown where Geobel fell, and so he said to himself:

"I will fix it." He then had the stone put down, and that kept off the questioners. But he missed the spot. He put the stone where, according to the witnesses, Jack Chinn stood when the shot was fired and Geobel was a little lower down and a few feet further away. This is not known, however, except to a few, and the visitors still think they are standing on the spot where Geobel fell, and they keep on coming. Which is just as well.

PRUNING KNIFE

Used At The State Charitable Institutions.

Six Useless Jobs Are Already Abolished.

New Superintendents Will Cut Off More.

MEN MUST DO FULL DAY'S WORK.

Dropping off of useless positions at the State charitable institutions has already begun, and the pruning knife will be used until the working forces at the three asylums and at the Feeble-minded Institute will be materially reduced. The Board of Control of Charitable Institutions has already abolished three positions at the Lexington Asylum and three at the Hopkinsville Asylum, and when the new superintendents at those two institutions get thoroughly into the workings of the asylums several more places will be vacant. It is the intention of the new superintendents to combine positions, and in many instances have one man do work which formerly was done by two. In this way it is hoped to make the cost of operation of the three asylums very much less.

At Lexington three positions have been abolished by the Board of Control. These are treasurer, inspector and pathological physician. The latter was supposed to make examinations of the patients and make tests of their blood and other things, but the Board believed that the position was a sinecure and abolished it. The physician who had the place had a large practice in Lexington and the Board was of the opinion that he was not needed at the asylum. An inspector, whose duty it was to keep a general watch over the whole institution and make reports to the superintendent, was also employed at the Lexington asylum. It was said that he did not inspect, and that the place was useless, so the Board cut this job off the list, also. The Board found further, that at Lexington, as at the other asylums, there was no need for a treasurer, any bank being willing to act as treasurer, in order to get the deposits, which amount to a good deal.

At Hopkinsville three positions were abolished. They were housekeeper, farm boss and treasurer. The housekeeper's duties could be filled by some of the other employees of the place, it was thought by the Board, so they dismissed the housekeeper and the work is now being done by the other attendants about the place. The farm boss had a good easy job, the Board says. Stanley Milward, a member of the Board, found that the farm boss was provided with a house, food for his family and a horse to drive. His duties, Mr. Milward said, were only to supervise the crops, and he simply drove about the farm for a short while each day. The job was a cinch, Mr. Milward said, and at his instance the place was abolished. It paid a good salary in addition to providing the boss with the comforts of life.

Just at present these six places are all that have been abolished, but more is to come when the new superintendents get down to work and use the pruning knife as they expect to. The Board says there is no desire to upset the arrangements at the asylums, but that it has been found that many places now filled by two men can be combined so that one man can do the work. As an instance it is cited that at Lexington one man does nothing but act as butcher. No beef is killed at the asylum, and the butcher's sole function is to cut up the meat, a job which does not require more than two hours each day. Another man attends the cold storage, while a third has a general supervision of the milk, and puts the milk in the cold storage. He is called a dairyman. The cold storage man and the dairyman will not have easy sailing in the future, as the two places will be combined and one will go out.

Several other places are to be cut off in the same way, and one man will have to do a man's work, the Board being against any job which does not occupy a man's time for at least eight hours every day. The management of the asylums is to be left largely to the superintendents, and they will do what chopping off of heads is to be done.

HAVE TROUBLE.

Republican Committee In Several Contests.

FIRST MEETING WILL SEE FIGHT BETWEEN GILLUM AND BYRLEY.

The troubles of the Republican State Central Committee, which was elected at the recent State convention in Louisville, will begin at the first meeting of the committee to be held in Louisville on July 8, and from the number of complaints being made in various sections of the State it is likely that the troubles of the executive body will multiply instead of diminish.

The first meeting will witness a contest between William Gillum and W. W. Byrley as to which is the rightful chairman of the Knox County Executive Committee, the contest for the office having recently been filed by Byrley, after Gillum had been named as the chairman. Byrley was formerly a member of the State Central Committee from the Eleventh congressional district, and served as chairman of the County Executive Committee for the past four years, and he now lays claim to the chairmanship of the county committee. This is so far the only contest filed before the State Central Committee, but it is said the same condition prevails in several other counties of the State, and it is expected that other contests will be filed before the meeting of the committee on next Wednesday.

In the contest filed from Knox county, Byrley appeals from the decision of the Congressional District Committee, which decided in favor of Gillum, but A. S. Bennett, secretary of the State Central Committee, said Thursday that he had not read the appeal as filed and could not tell the exact nature of the contest or the specific charges made by Byrley. It is said the wrangle between the two men for leadership in Knox county has resulted in much bitterness and that a warm debate will result when the appeal is taken up by the State Central Committee. In some of the counties in the State the county committees have so far failed to organize because of disputes over the chairmanships, and for this reason many of the counties will likely be represented at the meeting to seek advice on the manner of organization and the election of county chairmen.

James A. Sullivan To Leave Frankfort.

POPULAR MANAGER OF CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE COMPANY GOES TO LEXINGTON.

After nineteen years as manager of the local branch of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company, James A. Sullivan is to be transferred on July 15 to Lexington. His place here will be taken by Charles Liggett, of Louisville. Mr. Sullivan will succeed W. T. Naff at Lexington, and will have an important position there.

Mr. Sullivan is well known in Frankfort, on account of his long residence here, and he has a host of friends. The change will become effective the middle of this month, when Mr. Sullivan will leave Frankfort. The appointments were made by George Hall, district superintendent.

SQUAREST MAN

Title Won By Former Mayor
Charles Grainger.

Fusionist Surprised At Habits
Of The Man.

Don't Drink Or Smoke And Retires Early.

ALWAYS PLAYS ON TOP OF TABLE.

The squarest man in politics and business in Kentucky.

This is what Charles F. Grainger, of Louisville, is now and has always been. The editor of this paper knew Mr. Grainger intimately when the latter was mayor of Louisville, and the editor was a reporter for a Louisville newspaper, covering the City Hall beat. He learned to know Mr. Grainger and to know that when Mr. Grainger said anything, he meant just what he said and that when he promised to do a thing it was certain to be done. They say in Louisville that Mr. Grainger is the only man ever elected mayor of Louisville who kept his promises, and he is certainly the only mayor who went out of office at the end of his term stronger than when he went in. In looking over some exchanges the other day, the following which relates to Mr. Grainger was discovered, and is published that the readers of this paper, at least, may know what kind of a man Mr. Grainger is:

Much Abused Grainger.

"Perhaps no man in Kentucky politics has been more abused or vilified than Charles F. Grainger, Louisville's former mayor. Those who really know Grainger say that there is no man whose life is purer, cleaner or more wholesome than his. His sturdy stand for the Democrats of Louisville arrayed against him an element of the citizens of the metropolis who, on account of Grainger's grip on the local organization and his interest in racing in Kentucky, caused them to feel that the man was the embodiment of all the elements that go to make up the unscrupulous political boss.

"Grainger is now out of politics and has retired to private life. But the story of a Louisville Fusionist, who, up until recently, has always fought Grainger tooth and nail, reveals a side of the man's life that has never been known generally. Grainger's friends, however, who have been closely associated with him, have always known the type of man he was. And, therefore, the story is nothing new to them. The fact that some $38,000 of the $40,000 of the city's money was recently spent in an effort to get some intimation of something that might cast suspicion on the former mayor only resulted in the dollars going up in smoke, and Grainger's honesty and integrity beaming all the stronger. Although now in private life few men in Kentucky, so his friends declare, have the respect and esteem of the people who know him more than Charles F. Grainger has.

"The story is told by a Louisville Fusionist and not by Grainger, for he does little talking. The Fusionist who, in the heat of two political campaigns, had abused Grainger unmercifully, met with the former mayor in an Eastern city some time ago and spoke to him. Grainger, always courteous and polite, extended his hand and shook that of the Fusionist with great cordiality.

"Charley," said the other man, "I didn't think that you would speak so kindly."

"Why not?" asked Grainger, pleasantly. "I am always glad to see a Kentuckian anywhere."

Something of His Habits.

As told by the Fusionist, Grainger went up to his room with the Fusionist following him. Walking in, the other said:

"Charley, have a cigar."

"No, I thank you," replied Grainger, "I never use tobacco. Don't let that prevent you, though."

After lighting up the Fusionist went to the telephone and ordered some wine.

"You'll join me in this, anyhow," he said.

"I am very much obliged," responded the ex-mayor, "but just make it Apollinaris for me. I never drink."

"Do you mean to tell me that you don't drink?"

"I never do. I don't object to others drinking, just as long as they do not permit their drinking to interfere with their business, and then I don't care unless they are working for me. That's my ticket, but I'm not too good to drink. I just don't do it."

"Well, I'll be d—d!" said his companion. "And yet, we have been claiming down home that you were a bad fellow, and that we were good citizens."

Grainger smiled. "Just cut that out," he said, with a laugh. "I'll beat you at golf, bridge or billiards."

There was silence for a time. "Let's have a little theatre party and a dinner," said his friend, with a wink, indicating that there might be some side attractions.

"You'll have to scratch me again," spoke up Grainger. "Really, I am sorry, but you know you are a little too strong for me. I usually retire early. At home I keep regular hours and I try to do the same when away."

"Well, I'll be d—d, Grainger," said the Fusionist, pacing the room. "You are a surprise to me. But you set a good example for a fellow. I never knew you before."

Always on the Level.

He left. Grainger went downstairs and won a few games at billiards. He came back, read the afternoon papers and prepared for bed. A rap came and the door of the adjoining room opened. The Fusionist entered and saw—by the side of his bed—the former mayor of Louisville, "the atrocious boss," kneeling in prayer. The Fusionist stood silently in the middle of the floor, and finally said:

"Grainger, do you say your prayers every night?"

"Every night of my life," was the proud reply. "Ever since I was taught by my good old mother."

"You are the best fellow I ever saw," "No, I am not," said Grainger, quickly, "I say my prayers because I think I need to. Look here, man. I'm no goody-goody. I simply believe in being on the level and in doing the best I can. That's the rule of my life. I try to live every day so that I can look every d—d man in the face and tell him to go to hell, if I choose. That's my doctrine. I say my prayers and I have never done anything that my mother, who taught me that prayer, would be ashamed of. I'm happy, and so there you are."

The Fusionist was saying good night.

"By the way," called Grainger, "if you know any horse that you think will win tomorrow, I might bet $500 on him."

"Charley," said the Fusionist, "You have set me the best example any man ever did. I would have done things tonight that I should have regretted, if it hadn't been for you."

He clasped Grainger's hand tightly.

"I'm for you stronger than any man in Louisville. I say it, although I'm a Republican. The next man I hear say anything about you will have me to whip."

The Fusionist, a good citizen and a man who had believed the "Grainger machine" to be without honor, tells this story all over town.

County Board Will Handle Tobacco Crops.

CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY TAKE OVER TWO MILLION POUNDS OF THE WEED.

The Carroll County Board of Control of the Burley Tobacco Society has taken charge of the 1906 crop of tobacco, and which has been in the tobacco warehouses of Louisville for the past few months. The transfer was made by the rehandlers of Carroll county, who prized and rehandled it and gave bond to guarantee it until July 1, 1908.

The Board of Control went to Louisville and began its inspection of the crop. The tobacco was inspected by several experts employed by the Louisville warehouses and all of it was pronounced in the best of condition. The Board of Control gave the rehandlers a quietus and relieved them of all further responsibility. The 1906 crop of Carroll county amounted to 2,000,000 pounds, and the condition of the crop in that county, as inspected yesterday, proves as false the theory recently advanced by many that the crop of two years ago was a failure throughout Kentucky and the Burley district.

GETS FREEDOM.

Gov. Cox Pardons Man Who Had Served Many Years.

TIME WOULD HAVE EXPIRED IN DECEMBER—GOV. WILLSON
BACK AT WORK.

Acting Governor Cox has pardoned a convict who would have been released by the expiration of his term in December, after having served over seventeen years in the penitentiary here. The Acting Governor thought the man had served enough of his time, and the pardon was recommended by the trial court and the jury which convicted the man. His name is Herod Fletcher and he was convicted of killing his cousin, Cy Fletcher, in Magoffin county, in 1894, on election day. Fletcher was convicted and sentenced to eighteen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. His time would have expired in December, but he wanted a pardon, so that his citizenship would be restored to him. No protest was made against the granting of the pardon, and Gov. Cox decided that there was no good reason why the man should not go back to his home before his time was up.

Acting Governor Cox's last act before leaving the Governor's office was to issue a pardon to William Thornton, a young man convicted in Henderson of the charge of being accessory to robbery. The principal in the case received a sentence of two years and Thornton, who went to trial, was given three years. Later it was shown by the testimony of the principal that he alone was guilty and Thornton had had nothing to do with the crime.

Gov. Cox went to his home in Maysville and on to Atlantic City Wednesday for several weeks. Governor Willson reached Frankfort Monday. His mail had been pretty well cleared away by McKenzie Todd, his secretary, and the Governor will not have so much work as he had before his departure for Chicago two weeks ago.

Bowling Green Messenger Enters The News Field.

Judge Henry B. Hines and Ed. O. Leigh have launched the Bowling Green Messenger, which made its initial appearance Sunday and which will be issued every Thursday and Sunday hereafter. The new publication, which is designed to meet the needs of Bowling Green and Warren county, is all and more than its owners claimed for it in advance. Its typographical appearance is excellent, and the paper is full of news. In politics it is Democratic and promises to be a powerful influence in the Third district. The advertising support given the publishers in the first issue speaks well for the financial success of the venture.

Both Judge Hines and Mr. Leigh are widely and favorably known throughout the length and breadth of the State and their hundreds of friends are congratulating them on the successful beginning of their new enterprise.

Upholds New Whisky Law Defining Brands.

Judge Sater, in the United States Circuit Court, dissolved the restraining order which has been obtained by the Clifton Springs Distilling Company to stop the internal revenue men from branding with the designation "alcohol" a grade of distilled spirits which the company has been making, and selling for half a century under the name of "spirits."

Judge Sater, in his decisions, upholds the right of United States Internal Revenue Commissioner Capers to prescribe new rules for the branding of various products of the distilleries under the three general names of "high wines," "alcohol" and "spirits," as the case may be.

HEAVY LOSS.

Stamping Ground Almost Wiped Off Map.

Fire Destroys Haynor Hotel
And Sweeps Town.

Blaze Supposed To Be
To Incendiaries.

STARTS NEAR THE MIDNIGHT HOUR.

Fire which started about 1 o'clock Thursday morning in the Haynor Hotel, in Stamping Ground, spread rapidly to other buildings and for a time it was thought that the entire village would be destroyed. A storm was raging at the time and there seemed to be no chance to prevent every building in the town burning. The fire finally burned itself out. The loss is about $20,000.

The buildings destroyed were the Haynor Hotel, of which Louis Wiley is the proprietor; the three-story business structure occupied by Hickey Bros., general store and B. S. Calvert's saloon, the most substantial business block in the town; Homer Hawkins' blacksmith shop, and residences of John Whitton and Mrs. Mary Branham and another person whose name could not be learned.

The families of Hike Duvall, John Herrin, Kenney Voorhies, George Duvall and Mrs. Robert Miller, who lived in the Hickey block, had their household goods destroyed.

The tabulated loss as near as could be estimated Thursday morning, was as follows:

Hickey Brothers, valuation of stock, $4,000; insurance on building, $2,500; John Whitton, loss $1,400; no insurance.

D. C. Calvert, loss $6,000; insurance $1,500.

Homer Hawkins, loss $1,000. Postoffice damaged about $500.

Haynor Hotel damaged about $3,000.

Polindexter Bros., loss about $1,000.

The fire broke out about 1 o'clock in the rear of the Haynor Hotel, in or near the room occupied by the saloon, which is operated by Polindexter Bros. Who first discovered it, is not known, but Town Marshal John Richards, who lives only a short distance from the Haynor Hotel, heard some one on the street scream "fire." He leaped out of bed and on going to the door discovered the flames issuing from the rear of the hotel. The alarm soon brought practically every resident of the village to the scene, but the fire, fanned by a stiff breeze, had by this time gained such headway that the bucket brigade could make but little headway against the devouring element.

Stamping Ground has no fire department and the bucket brigade had to be depended upon, and it did heroic work in the face of almost hopeless odds.

That the fire was of incendiary origin is generally believed. Recently two or three attempts have been made to burn the town, and when the last attempt was discovered a special night watchman was employed. After being on duty about a week the night watchman was relieved Wednesday and the following night the firebugs got in their incendiary work. A strong effort will be made by the citizens to find and punish the guilty party or parties, and it is said that a clue has been discovered that may lead to the apprehension of the perpetrators.

Governor Attends Good Roads Conference.

Governor Willson went to Louisville Thursday afternoon and to Eminence Friday, with the men from that place who are interested in good roads. The Governor is a firm believer in good roads. He used to ride a bicycle a great deal and for that reason appreciates what good roads mean. He is a rider still, although he has not taken any runs about the State since he became Governor. The subject of good roads is on that appeals to him and he made a talk at Eminence to the men interested in the betterment of the thoroughfares of this State, which has more mileage of macadamized roads than any State in the Union. The Governor did not prepare a speech, but talked off-hand, as he usually does.

The Lawmakers defeated the Millers of Shelbyville here Sunday in one of the hardest fought games of the season by a score of 4 to 3, the Frankfort boys winning out in the last half of the ninth inning. Hemphill was driven to the tall and uncut in the ninth, and P. Long went in for the rest of the game. Cornell pitched superbly for the Lawmakers, and what he did for the visitors was good and plenty. While there was only one earned run, the game was unusually interesting, and a large and enthusiastic crowd was on hand.

Lexington defeated Versailles at Lexington Sunday in a one-sided game to the tune of 11 to 0.

The Lexington Thoroughbreds were simply up against the real thing at Knoxville last week, as the Tennessee boys trimmed them by a score of 27 to 7. Still there are some who claim that Lexington has the best club in the Bluegrass League.

President Hammond, of the Bluegrass League, was the guest of the Lawmakers at Sunday's game, and was more than pleased with the game, and was very complimentary on the manner in which Umpire Newman handled the game.

The Shelbyville boys say that we have, without doubt, the fairest and best umpire in the entire league, and that they will abide by his decisions at any and all times.

The Lawmakers will go to Versailles Saturday morning for a game with the Aristocrats. As this will be a holiday a big bunch of fans will accompany the pennant winners. The Versailles will play here this afternoon and again tomorrow. The Lawmakers have defeated the Woodford county boys in every game they have played this year, and feel confident of taking at least two out of these three games.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Bluegrass League was held on Sunday morning. The protests of Richmond and Lexington against the games won by Frankfort here within the past ten days were not allowed by President Hammond, and the games will stand as played. Frankfort won both. It was voted to extend the league season from fifty to sixty games and strong resolutions compelling the managers to prohibit gambling at the games were adopted.

The Richmond Pioneers forfeited the game to Lawrenceburg Sunday by a score of 9 to 0. The Richmond team failed to show up at Lawrenceburg and Umpire Bell gave the game to the Distillers.

Lexington fans will gladly welcome back J. McCormick, the crack southpaw, who was with the team in the early part of the season. McCormick is exceedingly popular with the Lexington fans and is one of the best twirlers in the league. As the local team is in need of a new twirler, McCormick's coming is just at the proper time.—Lexington Leader.

The Distillers of Lawrenceburg defeated the Lexington boys Wednesday by a score of 2 to 0.

Shelbyville defeated the Versailles bunch Wednesday by a score of 12 to 2.

The Millers of Shelbyville have signed Lee Hart, of Paducah, to pitch for them the rest of the season. He will report for duty next week.

The Lawmakers go to Shelbyville on Tuesday for a game with the Millers at that place. Several local fans will go along to root for our boys.

The Winchester club defeated a patched-up team of the Shelys at Coot's Park last Thursday in an uninteresting game by a score of 12 to 2. Burge started in to pitch for the Shelys but was touched up rather lively and gave way to P. Long. In the future the management promises the regular line-up in all games.—Shelby News.

Nina Visscher tied on the first try, the others trailing. In the play off, Miss Visscher won. Then the men had their go. Five men played, and every one fozzled the drive and some did no better on the second stroke. Arthur Van Winkle and Dr. H. S. Kellar played better than the others, making the first hole in five each. The others were in six or more. In the play off, Mr. Van Winkle won, making another five, while Dr. Keller made a six.

In the mixed putting match, the men drew for partners and putted in couples, making the approaching and holding out from each corner of the green. Miss Rebecca Johnson and Mr. Van Winkle made ten and were in the lead easily until Mrs. John W. Rodman and Mr. Hay went out, as the last couple. They started off with four in the first corner and then made three two, making a total of ten. On the play off, they beat Miss Johnson and Mr. Van Winkle, thereby winning eight new balls.

After the match a real supper was served on the fair green and more than a hundred enjoyed a delightful meal, for it was a meal and not a lunch. The hostess had not overlooked anything and cigars and cigarettes were provided for the men. After the picnic Prewitt Graham gave a dance, which lasted until 10 o'clock.

Convicted Night Rider Goes To Penitentiary.

Dr. E. Champion, convicted of night riding, for participating in the raid on Birmingham, Marshall county, on Wednesday, was taken by the sheriff of Marshall county to the penitentiary. Circuit Judge Reed this morning overruled his motion for a new trial and his attorneys prayed for an appeal. He was represented by Attorney Charles K. Wheeler and W. A. Berry, of Paducah, and Jack Fisher, of Benton. Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Lovett opposed the motion.

It was agreed that the prisoner should go to the penitentiary pending his appeal, which probably will not be heard before fall.

Racing Will Be Good At Matinee Trots.

The matinee racing season at the Gentleman's Driving Club Park will be formally opened Saturday when the first races will be held. Manager Albert Kirtley, of the track, stated last night that he is now engaged in preparing the program, which will be one of the best that was ever offered at such events. The racing is to be not only of trotters and pacers, but one or two running events will be sandwiched in between the wagon heats.

RAIN NEEDED

In Almost Every County In The State.

Crops Already Damaged By The Drought.

Tobacco Suffers More Than Anything.

WEATHER AIDS BURLEY SOCIETY.

Rain is badly needed in all parts of Kentucky, and the present drought is one of the worst which has been experienced in this State. All crops are suffering badly on account of the lack of rain, according to the reports which have been received by the Commissioner of Agriculture, and in some sections the crops will be almost a total failure. Tobacco has suffered more than any other crop, and the drought has reduced the acreage which has been planted so that the crop is going to be a small one. The following is the report which has been made for the month of June by the Commissioner of Agriculture, M. C. Rankin.

Burley Tobacco.
"In the counties of Spencer, Hart, Barren, Hardin, Green, Grayson and a part of Larue, there is about an average crop set out, although set late, and the prospect is not good on account of the dry weather. In the counties of Anderson, Bath, Boone, Bourbon, Boyle, Bracken, Carroll, Fleming, Gallatin, Grant, Henry, Kenton, Madison, Lincoln, Mercer, Montgomery, Nicholas, Oldham, Owen, Pendleton, Robertson, Shelby, Scott, Woodford and Harrison there is 3 1/2 per cent. of the crop planted, which would be about 5,350 acres.

"In the counties of Bath, Boone, Bracken, Fleming, Gallatin, Grant, Harrison, Kenton, Lincoln, Mercer, Nicholas, Oldham, Owen, Pendleton, Robertson, Scott and Woodford, our reporters have not reported any tobacco as being planted or going to be grown. In several of these counties, however, we understand there will be grown very few crops, at most. We understand, from citizens of the following counties reporting the conditions, that no tobacco has been or will be planted: Nicholas, Fleming, Franklin, Scott, Woodford, Owen, Gallatin, Boone, Kenton and Carroll.

"The estimated crops in counties not known as the Burley tobacco producing counties are: Allen, 375 acres; Barren, 400; Hardin, 300; Hart, 600; Larue, 400; Marion, 200; Meade, 400; Nelson, 400; Ohio, 200; Carter, 400; Lewis, 600; Greenup, 400. Total, 5,175.

Dark Tobacco.
"It has been reported to us that there will be about 84 per cent. of a full crop planted in the Dark Tobacco district. The prospect is that nearly all of this will be pooled. There are fifteen counties that constitute the above percentage in the second division. There are fifteen counties in the first division that report 100 per cent. or a full crop, planted, and an average of 92 per cent. in the whole Dark Tobacco growing district.

"The weather throughout the State for the whole month of June was unseasonably warm, and there was practically no rainfall. There was a high percentage of sunshine, causing a general drought.

Wheat.
"The weather has been very favorable for the harvesting of wheat and rye. In many sections threshing has commenced, and a good yield is being shown, and as fine a quality as has been known for several years. We have had several reports of insects damaging both the straw and the grain.

Oats.
"The oats crop has not been so poor for several years. The drought has caused almost a total failure in many sections of the State, and dry rust has helped to make the failures.

Hemp.
"The hemp crop is growing splendidly, but is badly in need of rain.

Bluegrass Seed.
"The harvest of Bluegrass seed was one of the largest known and the quality is good, although a lot of weeds were present.

Corn.
"The corn crop will be an average one, although the lateness of planting and the hot weather causing acidity of the soil in the lowlands, preventing the seed from germinating, worked a hardship. Many farmers had to replant their corn for the second and third times.

Barley and Millet.
"There is little of either of these crops grown in the State, but both crops are doing well, though badly in need of rain.

Fruit.
"There will be about one-third of a crop of fruit. There were few cherries, and plums are not bearing very heavy, as the destructive black knot has done great damage to the Damsom plum, and there will be few, if any, this season. The process does not seem to check the ravages of the black knot. In some sections of the State there is a full crop of apples and peaches, while in other sections both crops are almost a total failure.

Clover and Grasses.

"Clover and grasses are not as good as early prospects indicated, but many farmers are being able to cut and house their hay without rain, so that the average will be increased for that reason. Alfalfa is doing well, and there is a very increased acreage throughout the State."

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce J. CAMPBELL CAMPBELL, of Scott county, as a candidate for Congress, subject to the Democratic convention, September 3.

We are authorized to announce W. P. KIMBALL, of Fayette county, as a candidate for re-election to Congress from the 7th Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic Convention, September 3.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

The News is authorized to announce R. C. Hieath as a candidate for county judge of Franklin county, subject to the action of the Democratic party. 7-2tf.

The Denver convention should be a convention of harmony with concessions made to all factions but no compromise with dishonor, as Marse Henry would say. The platform can not please everybody, naturally and it would be a weak and futile thing if it could. They tell a story of a distinguished United States Senator, who was extremely cautious. He would not express an opinion on any subject, positively. One day, at a club, a crowd of Representatives and Senators were discussing this trait and a bet was made. It had rained in Washington for two days and when this Senator came in he was asked:

"Senator, do you think it will quit raining?"

"Well," he replied, deliberately, "It always has."

The Democrats do not want that kind of a platform. They want a platform that will take a positive and decisive stand, and which will let the people know "where they are at." There must be no trimming and beating about, but the platform must also conform to the various feelings of the Democrats. The maker of such a platform is to have a lively job on his hands. He is to have the same sort of task as was once dealt out to a newspaper man.

"Go up there and call them names, show that they are crooked and thieves and selling out, but don't make them mad."

That is what the writer of the Denver platform has to do. He may be able to do it. At any rate the Democrats have a good chance to land the election this year.

Frankfort is on a boom again as is shown by the directory which has just been issued. This shows the population to be nearly 14,000 and this does not include some two hundred or more persons who live beyond the city limits but do business in Frankfort. Frankfort is the best town of its size in Kentucky, beyond all question and in a few years, now that the capital question is settled for all time, the town will be a city. If one doubts that Frankfort is a live town or that nobody lives here one has only to go into town at night and one will find the streets as crowded as they are in Louisville. And then, too, Frankfort is getting so big that everybody does not know everybody else. The sign of a small town is when the entire population knows everybody. In a small town in Pennsylvania a stranger asked a native how many people lived there. The native began counting them on the fingers of his left hand and that is the way one would have done in Frankfort some years ago, now it is different. Go to one of the numerous moving pictures shows any evening and one will find a crowd and a crowd that is not personally known to all those present. Frankfort is growing fast and there is no reason why it should not grow faster.

The Democrats of Kentucky should do as the Republicans have already done; establish a permanent headquarters in Louisville from which the campaign could be conducted, not for two or three months in the year but for twelve months in the year. The result of the last election was due largely to the headquarters which the Republicans had in Louisville. The fight to carry an election must be waged all the time. It will not do to jump in during the last few weeks before the election and then attempt to perfect an organization. The organization must be kept up all the time and the committee should be in touch with every precinct all the time. It would be expensive but the money could be raised easily and with a compact organization the Democrats would have things their own way in Kentucky.

Gov. Willson is within his rights in being sore because of the misconception placed on the interview which was published in the Cincinnati Enquirer. He has been credited with saying that a majority of the tobacco growers are negroes and ignorant and lawless. What he actually said, as the article itself will prove, was that the laborers were negroes and lawless. He meant the men actually employed in the field, not the owners of the land. The Governor is having his troubles these days but a Governor always does and it is to be expected.

When has a man pardoned so many men as were pardoned by Gov. Cox and not aroused criticism? None of the pardons caused any protest and the course of the Acting Governor was warmly approved by everybody. The prison officials and guards all say that he did exactly right in every instance and the convicts have something to look forward to and some incentive for good behavior, knowing that their pardon does not depend on political pull.

We are sorry to see Gov. Cox leave Frankfort and go back to his home in Maysville. He is always welcome in Frankfort and everybody here is glad to see him in the executive chair.

James N. Kehoe has announced for Congress in the Ninth district; and if the Democrats nominate him he will win. He is the kind of a man Kentucky needs in the National Congress.

The Pessimist

Erstwhile The Optimist

By A. R. D.

This column has changed. No more Optimist. The Optimist has become a pessimist; a "rantankerous," perverse, disagreeable, peevish and cross pessimist. Almost a cynic. The dictionary says a cynic is a person with a snarling disposition. This is a good definition. It fits this case exactly. Perhaps, once having snarled a good long time and having been very vicious and perverse, the spell will leave and things will once more assume the rosy hue which Frankfort people should see in life. But until then this column is not going under any false colors. It is not going to fly the stars and stripes and play the "Star Spangled Banner" until it has reached its unsuspecting victim and then run up the black flag of piracy. No false pretenses. If you read this it is your own fault. You saw the caption, put there as a warning, and if you don't like pessimism then you had no business tackling a column that is obviously and patently cross. One of the typesetters said to The Optimist, the other day:

"Look here, it seems to me that column of yours is not rightly named. You do too much kicking for an optimist."

Perhaps he was right. Printers sometimes are. So the change. Now that it is a pessimist column the author is going to run riot for a while and cut and slash right and left, like a Malay run amuck, until his frenzy is over, then he will again become a gentle, inoffensive optimist, preaching patience.

One thing against which The Pessimist rails is convention. That is what makes him a pessimist. He is told he must do thus and so because somebody, somewhere, set a standard that way and, purely in an arbitrary fashion, said it must be done that way. And the world goes on obeying, not daring to defy. Things are done, not because they are essentially right, or because it would be wrong not to do them, but because custom says that they should be done. One's acts may be wrong per se, or wrong because they are forbidden. The latter are not wrong except that somebody, with the power, says that they are wrong. There is nothing in the acts themselves that is wrong, but custom or the lawmaking body steps in and says that it is wrong.

For instance, there is nothing wrong about a man's wearing green trousers, red shoes and a purple shirt. He commits no wrong, except, perhaps, to offend the esthetic taste of those not savage. Yet, if a man, thus clad, should walk down the street, he would attract a great deal of attention and his friends would reason with him or commit him to an insane asylum. Yet why? If a man wants to wear that combination, why not let him? How does he offend? If he likes that sort of thing he is certainly injuring no one by wearing it. That is an extreme case. Yet, if you want to test it, wear a bright red necktie. About half the persons one meets will comment on the necktie. Why? What difference can it make to any one else whether you wear a blue or a black or a red necktie? And whose business is it but your own?

Convention lays down certain rules for action and you must subscribe to them or be put down as a freak. And yet, they say we live in a free country and are free agents. That is the greatest mistake in the world. We are tied hand and foot by convention and by fear of what the crowd will say. Let a man deviate from the usual and he is as the rogue elephant—an outcast. Every person who is a member of society receives from that association certain privileges and in return gives up certain rights and privileges. This is as it should be. We cannot be selfish and think only of ourselves, or society, in the broader sense of that word, would disintegrate. The more civilized we become the fewer privileges we have. A man in the city is more restricted than that same man in the country. In the country, he may spit where he pleases, if he does please, but in the city he is told that it is harmful and he must not; furthermore, he is forced to abstain. In the city he has paved streets, trained police to protect him and his property, and firemen to guard his house, but he loses many rights that he would have in the country. This is all well enough. But where he transgresses no law or interferes with no one else, he should be allowed to do as he pleases and would do as he pleases but for lack of moral courage. Mark Twain wore a solid suit of white clothes, because he liked white clothes and because they suited him better. The public allowed him to do it because he was a celebrity, but the white clothes were worth columns of space to Mr. Clemens. Everybody commented on his white clothes. Being a strong man, he resisted and continued to wear his white clothes, but most men would have fled to the usual hot apparel. Another man likes cooked tomatoes excessively sweet. There is no reason why he should not eat them that way if he wants to. The sugar is not begrudged him, but somebody at the table always comments on the quantity of sugar he uses on the tomatoes. He must be cast-iron and deaf or eat tomatoes as other people eat them, or not eat them at all, merely because other people like them less sweet.

The Pessimist is a non-conformist. So far as he is able, without transgressing other persons' rights, he does as he pleases, and he expects to continue, regardless of being called queer, a freak, old and cranky, a fossil, and selfish. For instance, there is a crowd. The crowd does not talk to him, or of things which interest him, but the talk flows along in lines that are purely personal and interesting only to those involved. Which is all right and proper. The others want to talk that way, and there is no reason why they should not, being in the majority. The Pessimist leaves the crowd and goes to his room, where he enjoys life reading a good story. He is dubbed unsociable and a freak. He is neither. He is merely a human being who refuses to be bored or to bore others. That is all it amounts to. He is not missed nor mourned, and why should he not be allowed his own way?

Down in Louisville they have a skating rink for negroes. It is, or was, located over a drugstore. One night, when it first opened, a large and excessively fat negro woman, weighing some 350 pounds, went to the rink and put on a pair of skates. She had never tried it before and had taken only a few steps when he sat down, involuntarily and with abruptness. In the drugstore beneath they thought there had been an earthquake. Bottles fell off the shelves and the doors and windows rattled. Some half a dozen strong men hoisted the woman to her feet and started her off again. She sat again, with a thud like the sudden lying down of an elephant. After the third fall, the Brooklyn negro who was acting as manager of the rink, went up to the woman and said:

"Look here, lady, you'll have to take them skates off. You can't skate here."

"You go 'way from yere, nigger, I'se paid twenty-five cents fer dese skates, an' I got es much right es anybody up to the woman and said:

"I knows dat, lady," replied the manager, who was polite, but firm. "I knows dat, lady, but you ain't doin' this buildin' no good."

In a crowd the other night they were talking about the misuse of words and grammar, and giving illustrations of ungrammatical sentences, when one member of the crowd took the prize, with the following sentence, which he said a man in his town had perpetrated, shortly after acting as a volunteer fireman, when a residence was destroyed:

"I fit the fire until I was plumb wore out, but when they turned those hose on me I think was what done it."

JULY 4.

The members of the Country Club will entertain with a picnic on the club grounds Saturday afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock.

JULY 8.

Capt. and Mrs. Wm. Fitzhugh Dandridge will entertain with a german at the Country Club in honor of their daughter, Miss Elise Dandridge, Wednesday evening.

JULY 9.

Miss Weitzel's dinner in honor of Miss Elise Dandridge at the Capital Hotel.

"Please find me some men. I have fourteen more girls for my ball than I have men," said the hostess of a ball which is to be given soon. She expressed the same complaint which one hears on all sides this summer in Frankfort. There are not enough men to go around and more will have to be imported if the girls who are here all get beaux. One girl heaved a long sigh the other night and said: "I have not been anywhere with a man for so long that I would not know how to act if one should ask me to go with him."

This, too, with Frankfort gayer than it has been in several summers and dances and balls and parties being pulled off almost every day. Most of the older girls have stopped waiting for men to ask them to go, and they pike along in bunches. At the picnic at the Country Club last Saturday there were counted, in a long row, ten women without a man to break the monotony, and the prevailing ratio, except at a German, when a great many girls stay at home, is two to one.

All of which is bad. It spoils the men who think they are indispensable, and some of them are so independent that they have to be handed engraved invitations on a golden platter before they will condescend to do anything. The problem of entertaining one's guests becomes serious when the hostess can not find enough men to go around, and she has to issue the aforesaid platter invitations.

HANDSOME RECEPTION ON THE LAWN.

Mrs. Stapleton Johnson and her daughters, Mrs. Frank Barret and Miss Rebecca Johnson, entertained delightfully Wednesday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, in honor of Mrs. Augustine McIntire, of Fort San Houston, Texas, and Miss Lillie O'Hara, of West Point, New York. The informal reception was held on the lawn, which was lighted with dozens of Japanese lanterns, hung artistically in all parts of the yard. The arrangement of lanterns was unusually effective, especially around the two punch bowls. One was in the grape arbor, which was brightly lighted by the many colored paper lanterns. The punch bowl itself was decorated with bunches of green grapes and leaves, the glass being entirely hidden by the mass of green. At this table Miss Elise Dandridge and Miss Lillian Poyntz served lemon frappe. The other table was under a large tree, and was surrounded by lanterns. Lime frappe was served here by Miss Elise Montgomery and Miss Virginia Gray. An orchestra, hidden by the mass of vines on the porch, played all during the evening. About one hundred guests called during the evening to meet the hostesses and their visitors.

FOR MISS DANDRIDGE.

Miss Amelia Weitzel will entertain with a dinner Thursday evening at the Capital Hotel in honor of Miss Elise Dandridge. Covers will be laid for twenty-four.

Mrs. A. D. Martin entertained at bridge, Thursday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Augustine McIntire and Miss Lillie O'Hara, who are visiting Mrs. Frank Barret. The prize was won by Miss Rebecca Johnson.

KALTENBRUN-BARR HOME WEDDING.

Tuesday at high noon the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent A. Kaltenbrun, on Main street, was the scene of one of the most beautiful home weddings, solemnized during the season when Miss Fredrica Kaltenbrun became the wife of Dr. Joseph Barr. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thos. S. Major, of the Church of the Good Shepherd, the bridal party forming in a semi-circle beneath a beautiful floral arch of brides roses and smilax, which formed a canopy in the front parlor. The home was profusely decorated in palms, ferns and varied potted plants. The bride was attired in a handsome gown of white silk mull and lace, and wore a large white picture hat trimmed in Duchess lace and tulle, encircled with a long white ostrich plume. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses and lilies of the valley. Her only attendants were Miss Mary Barr, of Lebanon, a sister of the groom, and Mr. J. A. Kaltenbrun, a brother of the bride.

Miss Barr was gowned in white mull and lace, and wore a large white picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet of roses.

The nuptials were witnessed by the immediate relatives of the bride and groom, after which an elegant breakfast was served to some thirty guests, at which the tables were attractively decorated in pink and white, the wedding colors.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. V. A. Kaltenbrun, and is quite an attractive and accomplished young girl, being a recent graduate of the High School. Her classmates in the graduating class assisted in receiving the guests and serving the ices and punch, they being gowned in their white graduation dresses presented a beautiful picture surrounding the young couple.

Dr. Barr came here several years ago from Lebanon, during which time he has been physician at the State Penitentiary, and by his gentlemanly manners has made a host of friends in Frankfort. The couple were remembered with many handsome presents, consisting of cut glass, silver and china.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Barr, Misses Mary Agnes, Margaret and Catharine Barr and Mrs. Thos. Barr, of Lebanon; Dr. and Mrs. V. A. H. Kaltenbrun, of Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Weisenberger, of Midway; Mrs. R. Weisenberger and Misses Mary, Frances and Catharine Weisenberger and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Eddy, of Louisville; Mr. Augustus Weisenberger, of Woodford county; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Barlow, of Madison, Ind., and Misses Mary and Loraine Roberts, of Lexington.

BURNAM-GREENLEAF HOME WEDDING.

The Richmond Climax has the following note of the Burnam-Greenleaf nuptials, which will be of much interest here, where the couple are well known and have many friends. Miss Burnam having made her home here several years during her father, Judge A. R. Burnam's, term on the Appellate Bench.

"Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Judge and Mrs. A. R. Burnam, on West Main street, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Sarah, to Judge J. J. Greenleaf. The interior of the home was made beautiful by the liberal use of smilax, sweet peas, palms and ferns, which formed an altar in the large bay window of the parlor. As the wedding march rendered by the Frankfort Orchestra sounded, the bridal party entered the parlor and stood before this altar, where, in impressive style, Rev. E. H. Burnam, the bride's great-uncle, performed the ceremony. The groom entered with Mr. Burnam, who was his only attendant. The bride's attendants were Miss Virginia Chinn, of Frankfort, maid of honor, and the Misses Esther, Madge and Marion Burnam and Van Greenleaf. The bride was a vision of loveliness, her petite brunette beauty being increased by her rich lace bridal robe and veil. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. The guests included only the two families and a few special friends. After the ceremony and congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Greenleaf left in an automobile for a wedding tour, their destination not being made known. Returning they will go at once to housekeeping in Dr. Holton's attractive cottage on the corner of Oak and High streets. This wedding unites two of our most prominent families and only words of praise are being showered upon the young couple, who start out in life under such auspicious conditions.

WHITE SUIT

Worn By Governor When Staff Meets Here.

Causes Sensation On Frankfort Streets.

New Colonels Entertained By Col. Hendrick.

UNIFORMS ARE NOT YET SECURED.

Gov. Willson has a white suit. It is not a solid, spotless white suit, like the one which made Mark Twain's fame revive, but the suit is nearly white, at that. The Governor bought the suit in the East, and wore it for the first time in Frankfort on the day his staff gathered here to discuss plans for a uniform which will make the white suit look out of place. The Governor created something of a sensation when he walked through the streets last Tuesday afternoon in that white suit, but everybody agreed that it looked nice and cool. The Governor turned the corner from the depot, going to the Capital Hotel, at a lively rate for he was late and that white suit was flapping in the breeze which his movements stirred up. The Governor was feeling good, though, and he was smiling and bowing right and left. The staff was waiting for him, and they formed in line and marched along, in imposing array with the white suit in the lead. Frankfort expected to see the staff in uniform and was much disappointed when it was learned that this subject was the very thing which had brought all the colonels here. The Governor has selected his staff from all sections of the State and they are representative men.

In plain clothes and looking unlike the usual staff of a governor, the body of men who will be Gov. Willson's personal guard of honor on State occasions gathered here for the first time to discuss the question of uniforms and other things, including an excellent dinner at the home of Col. Buford Hendrick, who is a member of the staff. The staff, nearly all of whom were present, met at the Capital Hotel at 6 o'clock and marched in a body to the handsome home of Col. Hendrick. During the dinner, short and informal after-dinner speeches were made by the Governor and the members of the staff, and the visitors enjoyed the evening greatly. The Governor told his friends about his trip East, and the Harvard commencement and they all told him they were for him for anything he wanted.

The following members of the staff attended the dinner: Adjutant General P. P. Johnston, Assistant Adjutant General Lige Green, Judge Advocate General W. G. Dearing, Louisville; Dr. Frank Boyd, Paducah, surgeon; George A. Newman, Louisville; Thos. H. Hays, Louisville; J. W. McCulloch, Owensboro; Otto A. Brieth, Newport; A. T. Macdonald, Louisville; T. A. Field, Ashland; O. H. Barrows, Owensboro; C. S. Millard, Louisville; W. E. Koop, Louisville, and Buford Hendrick, Frankfort.

The following members of the staff sent regrets, being unable to be present: Marion E. Taylor, Louisville; A. H. Eagan, Louisville; Milton H. Young, Lexington; James L. Hackett, Louisville; Frank Coles, Ashland; W. P. Semple, Louisville.

The uniform which will be adopted probably will be about the same as has been used and will be rather elaborate. Frankfort was much interested in the appearance of the new staff to-day and was much disappointed that they were not in uniform. When the staff gathers again it is probable that they will be resplendent in gold braid and lace.

First Trip Soon.

The first trip which will be taken by the official and personal family of the Governor, his staff of colonels, will be some time next month, when the Governor and his staff will go to Put-in-Bay, Ohio, where the National rifle shooting contest will be held.

The contract for uniforms was given to a Cincinnati factory and the new uniforms will be ready for wearing in a short time. The staff has decided to attend the State fair in Louisville on the opening day, which will be designated as Governor's day. The staff will go to Indianapolis also, when the first Kentucky will be camped at Fort Harrison with the regulars. Several other trips may be taken and it is expected that the Kentucky colonels will make a brave showing in their resplendent uniforms. They will have two, one called dress and the other full dress. There will be no fatigue uniform, but the colonels will always look as if they were ready for a parade. McKenzie Todd was elected secretary of the staff at the dinner last Tuesday night.

May Attend Church In Shirt Sleeves.

HARRDSBURG MINISTER ADOPTS PLAN WHICH MAY HELP ATTENDANCE AT SERVICE.

Last Wednesday evening at the prayer meeting services at the Baptist church, Rev. J. M. Roddy announced that hereafter during the hot summer months the male members of the church would be given the privilege of attending the Wednesday evening services in their shirt sleeves. Mr. Roddy said that he would lead the procession and would come to church tomorrow night without his coat if the weather should be as sultry as it has been for the past week or so.

By the introduction of this plan it is hoped to greatly increase the attendance of the men at the prayer meeting services. It is a novel scheme and will doubtless prove popular. Mr. Roddy said that during the season of the union services he would have the prayer meeting take the place, as far as possible, of the regular Sunday night preaching services.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

Business Men's Club Will Elect Officers.

The annual election of officers for the Business Men's Club will be held next Thursday night and it is expected that George B. Harper will succeed himself as president, as he has filled the position so satisfactorily to everybody. The meeting of the club will be preceded by a lunch at the Frankfort Hotel, and the new management will try to surpass the record which was set by the old managers. It was a high mark, but Wallace & Co. expect to beat it. Secretary John H. Cassell says he will not stand for re-election as the duties of the office interfere with his business to too great an extent.

Governor Was Given L. L. D. By Harvard.

Gov. Willson returns to Kentucky with the degree of LL. D. from Harvard, an honor which is not often conferred, and which is regarded as a great mark of distinction. The Kentucky papers made a mistake and had the degree A. M., but the Governor told some of his friends here that it was the higher degree of LL. D. which he received. It is said that the conferring of the degree was received with great enthusiasm, and the Governor of Kentucky was one of the conspicuous figures at the Harvard commencement.

FACE DEFICIT.

State Has Not Money To Pay Its Debts.

GOVERNOR AND TREASURER ARE WORRIED OVER CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

With only $133,379.60 in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year, and with something like $100,000 in unpaid warrants outstanding against this, the State of Kentucky is facing a financial stringency and the State officials are worried. Gov. Willson and Capt. Ed Farley, the State treasurer, held a conference Wednesday morning and admitted that the situation is serious, and they will have to take some determined and decisive step to cure the financial evils which now exist.

"Where are we drifting?" is a question which Capt. Farley asked. He asked it of the Governor, and the Governor could not answer for he was looking at figures which are not pleasant to contemplate. The following table, showing the amount of money on hand in the State treasury on July 1, for the last four years, was what caused the question to be asked by Capt. Farley:

July 1, 1905.....	$437,343 16
July 1, 1906.....	323,049 63
July 1, 1907.....	294,242 98
July 1, 1908.....	133,379 60

This table shows a gradual shrinking of the amount in the treasury and at the same rate of shrinking, in 1909 at the end of the fiscal year, there would be nothing in the treasury. This shrinkage is what is worrying the treasurer and the Governor. And the expenses during the fiscal year which ended yesterday were not as great as the expenses will be for the year which begins today, as the large appropriations made by the last Legislature must be paid and the new capitol must be furnished.

While the statement shows that there is in the treasury a total of $133,379.60, the outstanding warrants, which have already been issued, amount to over $150,000 and the expenses of the charitable institutions must also be counted, so that there really is a deficit of from $20,000 to $50,000, and no immediate prospect of relief. What will be done nobody knows. The Governor said that it was simply an increased expenditure without the increase in receipts, and that too much money had been spent before the Republicans took office. The complete figures, showing outstanding warrants, and the total indebtedness, with the figures of receipts, will be made up by Capt. Farley as soon as he can get the statistics and this report will be submitted to the Governor. Some steps for relief will then be taken.

John Wood Wants To Succeed Hedden.

WOULD BE STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PRINTING—G. A. LEWIS APPLICANT.

John Wood, of Mt. Sterling, was here to see Gov. Willson about the appointment of a new superintendent of printing, it being understood generally that J. W. Hedden, who now holds the position, is to resign. This is one office which is still filled by a Democrat, but efforts are now being made to get Mr. Hedden out so that the place can go to a Republican, and it now looks as if the job will be filled by a Republican soon. Mr. Wood probably will be appointed in a few days, although nothing definite has been decided upon. Mr. Wood asked the Governor to hurry things up a little, as he is anxious to have it settled. It is understood that Mr. Hedden will resign the place if Mr. Wood is to be appointed as his successor, but that if any other man is to get the place, Mr. Hedden will hold on and the Republicans will have to remove him. They claim that this can be done, but the Democrats think that nothing can be done, as there is no good reason for Mr. Hedden's removal, no cause for complaint about his management of the office existing. Mr. Wood and Mr. Hedden were partners in a newspaper for seven years and are good friends. For this reason Mr. Hedden, who has good things in sight that will pay him better than the position of superintendent of printing, is willing to get out of the way of Mr. Wood.

No enterprising printer will be content with merely keeping up to the times. Those who are most successful strive to keep ahead of the procession.

Received Injuries When McKinley Was Killed.

ALBERT GALLAHER DIES IN CHICAGO AFTER MANY MONTHS OF SUFFERING.

Albert Gallaher, for many years in the secret service of the United States and one of those detailed as the personal guard of the late President McKinley at the time of his assassination, died at Chicago Tuesday. Gallaher who seized the wrist of the assassin after the fatal shot was fired, wrenched the weapon from his hand. Gallaher was mistaken by the crowd for the assassin and was set upon and beaten, and to this fact, according to the attending physician, Gallaher's death was indirectly due. An affection of the liver developed from injuries which he sustained at that time.

After his experience at Buffalo, Gallaher was under a physician's care for a time, but the extent of his injuries was not then realized. He was later transferred from Chicago to St. Paul, Minn., where he became ill and unfit for duty last October. He was attended in Chicago recently by Drs. C. P. Stringfield and C. A. Storey. The former said today that the immediate cause of his death was cancer of the liver, and that in all probability it was the result of the rough handling received at the hands of the crowd following the shooting in Buffalo. Dr. Stringfield's opinion was indorsed by Capt. T. I. Porter, in charge of the Chicago District of the Federal Secret Service, under whom Gallaher worked. Gallaher was one of the men appointed to guard the person of Count Witte, of Russia, at the treaty conference between representatives of Japan and Russia at Portsmouth, N. H., and was given a watch and chain by the Russian nobleman in token of appreciation of his services.

Democrats Go Out To Provide Places.

WILLIAM O'CONNELL AND MISS MAY ROBARDS LOSE—MISS NELL GETS JOB.

It has been announced that William O'Connell, the last Democrat in the office of the clerk of the Court of Appeals, is to lose his place and will go out on July 15. Napier Adams, the clerk of the court, said that Mr. O'Connell would be continued in the office for a time.

Miss Mary Robards, of Harrodsburg, another Democrat, who has been stenographer in the office, will go out in the next few days, and her place will be filled by a Republican.

Rodman Keenon, who is city attorney of Harrodsburg, finished up his work of collecting fees and will go to Harrodsburg in a few days. His place will not be filled. This is a clean sweep in the clerk's office, and in a few weeks it is probable that Capt. W. M. Lyons will be the only Democrat surviving on the square.

J. R. Cook, of Somerset, will succeed Mr. O'Connell and, Miss Pearl Neil, of Frankfort, will succeed Miss Robards.

Tallest Building In Even Tall New York.

EQUITABLE WILL PUT UP STRUCTURE SIXTY-TWO STORIES ABOVE THE STREET.

Plans for a new skyscraper which will overtop all New York's lofty buildings and the flagpole of which will pierce the sky at a greater height than the Eiffel tower, Paris, the tallest structure in the world, were filed by architects for the Equitable Life Assurance Society with the building department. The projected building for the Equitable will be a sixty-two story structure, 999 feet from the curb to the tip of the tower upon which will be placed on a flagpole 150 feet high. The ball on the flagpole will be seventy-four feet higher than the 985 foot steel Eiffel tower.

The main building, which will occupy the site of the present structure of the company on Lower Broadway, covering an entire block, will be thirty-four stories, above which will rise a square tower of twenty-eight stories, capped with a cupola. The facades are to be of brick and granite. The structure is to cost $10,000.

The last steel rivet was driven today in the tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company building, the tallest office building in the world, and a flag floated from a pole 710 feet above the pavement. The building is 657 feet in height.

Prohibition Plank May Be In The Platform.

FIGHT WILL BE MADE IN THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM AT DENVER.

The fight over the anti-injunction plank in the Democratic platform is not the only struggle on which the committee on resolutions, and possibly the convention itself, may be involved.

It has developed that the prohibition question is to be brought to the front and that a desperate effort will be made to have a plank declaring in its favor placed in the platform. The prohibition movement will be headed by Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa, who demanded of the recent Democratic convention in that State that it declare in favor of prohibition. Gen. Weaver and his followers were not successful in their efforts in their own State, but nothing daunted by their failure, have made arrangements to bring the matter up before the Democratic National convention. They claim, moreover, to have strong backing from a number of the Southern delegations which have recently passed prohibition laws, and it is declared confidently by Gen. Weaver's adherents that if the Democratic national platform does not contain a prohibition plank it will only be for the reason that the hardest kind of fighting has been unable to secure its adoption.

My Old Kentucky Home, Good Bye.

ROSE CAPLINGER BACON.

The sun shines just as bright on my old Kentucky home,
But the farmers and the darkies are not gay,
For no tobacco can they raise and no horses can they run
And their whisky can not even give away.
The young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
They are crying with hunger and with fright,
For the night riders now are whipping all their dads,
So my old Kentucky home, good night.

Weep no more, my lady, weep no more, I say,
For we'll sing one song for the old Kentucky home,
For the home for which we found we could not pay.

We will hunt no more for the possum and the coon,
On the meadows, the hills and the shore,
For the soldiers now are camping on the ground
Where we have been hunting heretofore;
The day goes by, like a shadow o'er the heart,
With shadow where all was delight,
But tho' I hate to leave, I've a living to make,
So my old Kentucky home, good night.

For the head must bow and the back will have to bend,
Where e'er a poor man may go,
But tobacco he can raise, and whisky can help make
If he only will cross the Ohio;
So tho' it breaks my heart to leave you, my delight,
And all of the joy is taken from my life,
I must leave you now, but will falter on the road,
So my old Kentucky home, good night.

GOVERNOR DENIES

Saying Anything Reflecting
On Tobacco Planters.

Says He Was Misquoted In Enquirer Interview.

Has Greatest Respect For
The Planters of Kentucky.

NOT A WORD OF CRITICISM OF THEM.

Gov. Willson was shown the Kentucky State Journal of June 24, crediting the Winchester Democrat with a reprint of what purported to be an interview with him printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer of June 14, on "What Gov. Willson Says and Thinks of the Tobacco Growers of Kentucky." The article has been given wide publication in the country papers and the tobacco periodicals and was evidently intended to injure Gov. Willson with the tobacco growers. It was the first time that the Governor's attention had been called to the item, as he had been absent from the Capital for two weeks. After its perusal, he gave out the following statement:

"The interview published under the headlines, 'What Governor Willson Says and Thinks of the Tobacco Growers of Kentucky,' is not about the growers, but about the laborers. Some weeks ago, at the Conference of Governors at Washington, by request, he gave Mr. Morrow, a magazine writer, a brief verbal interview on the tobacco situation, with the understanding that it was to be submitted before publication, and Mr. Morrow's recollection of it was submitted, and, while in part approved, was very extensively corrected, because Mr. Morrow, while writing in a friendly spirit, had made quite a long story on a short talk, and a large part of the story was seriously inconsistent with the Governor's knowledge, belief and opinions. But the return of the corrected paper was unavoidably delayed, so that the original was published without the corrections.

"Governor Willson has not said to any one that most of the tobacco laborers are white, his impression has been that they were not. He has never said that they 'generally live in huts.' His belief is that such a statement is absurdly untrue. He has not said and does not believe that they 'compel their women and children to go into the fields.' He has never said and does not believe that they (the tobacco growers) 'are, as a rule, lawless and violent.'

"The Governor has uttered no libel on them or any class of Kentucky people. He believes that the raisers of tobacco in Kentucky are like other people in Kentucky, as a rule, honest and good citizens, and the Governor is not 'grossly ignorant' of this fact, nor has he 'misrepresented them.' The Governor honors and loves the people of Kentucky, earnestly feels his debt of gratitude to them and is working with no personal end but to try to give them faithful service and pay them unflinching honor and praise. He has no word of reproach or unfriendliness for the tobacco growers or laborers. He has opposed the power of the State to the violence of a comparatively small number of men who have banded together to intimidate others and injure them and their property professedly in the interest of tobacco men, but undoubtedly to the great hurt of all tobacco growers and workers, and there will be no thought of change or letting up in the earnest maintenance of law and order and liberty under the law.

"Instead of abusing the good name of the tobacco men of Kentucky, the Governor has made it his policy generally to refuse to talk for publication on Kentucky troubles, holding firmly to the policy of helping the officers of the law to suppress the troubles with all necessary force, and not by abuse or scolding, published or unpublished."

Family Fight May End Lives Of Two.

JARVEY BROCK SHOTS FATHER-
IN-LAW SIX TIMES—WOUNDS
WILL BE FATAL.

As a result of a family fight at the home of Jarvey Brock, half-way between Bagdad and Hatton, on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, Shelby county, M. C. Roberts lies in a dying condition from six pistol wounds inflicted by Brock, while Brock is in a serious condition from a wound in the forehead inflicted by Roberts. Neither are expected to live.

The fight occurred at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning. Brock, who is Roberts' son-in-law, was quarreling with his wife, when Roberts rushed into the room and hit him on the forehead with the blunt side of an axe. Brock was stunned for several moments, but when he recovered consciousness he pulled a 32-caliber automatic pistol and opened fire on his father-in-law. All six shots took effect, two in the head, one in the eye and three in the body.

Neighbors came in and physicians were summoned and attended the wounded men. Notwithstanding two of the bullets in Roberts' head exposed the brain, he is conscious. Both of the men have been employed on the railroad, but Brock, who has but one arm, now owns a small farm, where the trouble occurred. Roberts has six children, but has separated from his wife, and was living with his son-in-law at the time the fight occurred.

THREE FRANKFORT MEN QUALIFIED.

Eligible To Positions On State Rifle Team.

Twenty Candidates For The Twelve Places.

FINAL SHOOT WILL BE NEXT WEEK.

Twenty men have qualified as sharpshooters at the Kentucky State rifle range, and from this number will be selected twelve men who will constitute the team which will represent Kentucky at the national rifle range in Ohio. The twelve men to compose the team will be selected next week and the team then will practice every day until the contest in Put-in-Bay, Ohio, is held. The following are the men who have qualified as sharpshooters:

Team Captain, Major Victor K. Dodge, Inspector of Rifle Practice, Lexington, who cannot shoot on the team on account of having a rank higher than captain.

Capt. Felix Kerriek, First Infantry, Louisville.

Capt. Robert N. Krieger, First Infantry, Louisville.

Capt. A. McLean Moffatt, First Infantry, Louisville.

Capt. Jackson Morris, Engineer Corps, Frankfort.

Capt. James R. Sams, Inspector of Rifle Practice, Second Infantry, Lexington.

Lieut. Grover C. Bailey, Second Infantry, Pineville.

Lieut. C. Foster Helm, Engineer Corps, Lexington.

Lieut. W. H. Meadows, First Infantry, Louisville.

Lieut. N. J. Wilburn, Second Infantry, Middlesboro.

Lieut. Selby Sale, First Infantry, Louisville.

Lieut. Ernest Bell, Second Infantry, Frankfort.

Sergeant Walter Jackson, Second Infantry, Barbourville.

Sergeant Wiley S. Jackson, Second Infantry, McWhorter.

Sergeant M. C. Combs, Second Infantry, Lexington.

Sergeant J. W. Wilson, Second Infantry, Middlesboro.

Sergeant J. T. Allen, Third Infantry.

Private Caster Bailey, Second Infantry, Pineville.

Private James E. Price, Second Infantry, Pineville.

Private W. H. Ratcliffe, Second Infantry, Lexington.

Private B. S. Williams, Second Infantry, Frankfort.

Five men from Louisville qualified for the sharpshooters' contest, three being commissioned officers and none of them privates. Frankfort has three men qualified while seven men from the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, where all the men know how to shoot, are on the list of those qualified to enter the final competition. The shooting on the range this summer has been good and it is expected that Kentucky will take a high standing in the national contests. It is only recently that Kentucky has had a team in the national contests but the team this year will be better than last year's team, and it is hoped to have a team that can win in the next two or three years, after the men in the State Guard have had practice and training.

Col. Elijah Green Gets New Position.

Col. Elijah Green, Assistant Adjutant General, handed in his resignation and accepted the appointment as State Immigration Agent, a place which pays $2,000. The appointment was made by M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture. Col. Green has been Assistant Adjutant General for several months and had a fine record in the department. His place has not been filled and there is no immediate need for an assistant. It is generally understood that Garnett Ripley, who now holds a place in the Adjutant General's office, will be promoted and made Assistant Adjutant General. Gen. Johnston said that he did not know who would get the place. The duties of the immigration agent will be to gather statistics regarding persons who come into Kentucky, as well as those who leave the State. In the latter cases he will be expected to give the reasons so that the State officials will be in a position to know how to meet the troubles.

Capt. Jackson Morris Scores Nine Bullseyes.

BREAKS RECORD FOR SHOOTING
ON STATE RIFLE RANGE AT KENNEBEC.

Capt. Jackson Morris, Assistant Secretary of State, has made the highest score ever made in Kentucky on a rifle range at 800 yards. He scored 49 out of a possible fifty at that distance, putting nine out of ten balls into the bull's eye and missing the other time only by the fraction of an inch. Capt. Morris is one of the best shots in the State and has won many medals for his marksmanship. When he made his record, he fired twelve shots and eleven of them hit the center of the target. A bull's eye counts 5 and a shot in the next ring counts 4. Capt. Morris fired two shots to get the range and measure the wind, being allowed that number of testing shots. He made a bull's eye each time. He then started in to shoot for a record. On the first shot he made 4 and the next nine shots were placed in the bull's eye. At 800 yards this is regarded as remarkable shooting.

BILLY ABSENT

At The Psychological Rat Killing Moment.

CAPT. JACKSON MORRIS STAYS
RODENT AND DOG IS REGRETFUL.

Think of killing rats in the Governor's reception room. The idea strikes the general public as being out of the question, but they don't know the old State House, which is overrun with rodents. Capt. Jackson Morris actually killed a good-sized rat in his desk in the Governor's reception room Thursday afternoon. Capt. Morris used a ruler to destroy the animal, which has made its home in his desk for some time. The fact that Billy was not there at the time was deeply deplored by everybody. Billy is a fox terrier. Billy is well known at the State House, where he spends most of his leisure hunting for rats which he never catches. The trouble is not with Billy, as Billy is an expert rat catcher, and is a relentless foe of rats, but there are too many things under which the rats can go, but under which Billy can not. The rats get away for this reason. Billy has smelled rats in the Governor's office for some time, but has never had a glimpse of them, and he has become discouraged. He still gets excited when he smells rats, but does not really expect them to come out and be killed.

So on Thursday when he smelled a rat in the drawer of the desk presided over by Capt. Morris Billy was merely mildly excited. Billy knew that the rat would stay in the desk, and that he would not have any chance to kill it, but he told the men in the office that the rat was there and they could get it out if they would. Nobody paid any attention to Billy's remarks on the subject of rats for he has talked about them too much. Capt. Morris was not there at the time, being outside in search of his dinner. When he returned, the others told him Billy had shown signs of having discovered a rat in the drawer of the desk. Billy, by that time, had gone on about other business. Capt. Morris decided to investigate, and opened one of the drawers quickly. The rat was there, and made a break for liberty, but Capt. Morris was too quick for the rodent and killed it with a ruler. Then he wished he had waited for Billy, as everybody was anxious to see Billy kill a rat. Billy does not know what he missed, but he will be disappointed when he learns of the adventure.

Kentucky Historical Society Complimented.

SPECIAL MENTION MADE IN THE HANDBOOK OF LEARNED SOCIETIES.

In the "Handbook of Learned Societies of North and South America," just issued, special mention is made of the Kentucky State Historical Society.

This is a high and deserved compliment to this society, which has accomplished so much for the instruction, information and benefit of Kentucky and through its correspondence, for the United States. It is noted among the important societies of North and South America, with brief statement of the history and object of the society and proper address.

This recognition is very gratifying to the members of the society, whose ambition and purpose is to enlarge the properties of the society in the new capital, and so extend its influence throughout the world. Already it is known through its magazine, the "Register," in Germany, England, Scotland, Ireland and France.

People now visit the rooms of this society in crowds and from all parts of the Union, to see the collections there and enjoy the fine illustrations of Kentucky's history in portraits, pictures and objects of interest representing Kentucky's pioneer history and industries.

HEAVY WIND

Does Considerable Damage In Fayette County.

ARISTOCRATIC WOODLAND HIT BY CYCLONE—MANY TREES ARE DESTROYED.

A cyclone, accompanied by hail, struck Woodland, an aristocratic suburb of Lexington, about 11 o'clock Wednesday night, and while none of the people were injured several houses were unroofed, chimneys blown down and a large number of trees twisted in two and hurled upon adjacent buildings. The most serious damage was done at the residence of Price Fishback, where a large ash tree in the yard was hurled upon the stable, crushing the building to the ground and pinning a horse which was in its stall under the debris.

At the home of Roger Smith a hailstone was shot through an upstairs window, leaving a clean-cut hole like a grapeshot had passed through.

Serious damage done at the homes of H. G. Van Arsdell and John Carter shows the force of the wind. Windows upstairs and down were broken. On the second floor the casing was torn from fastenings and blown inside. Bricks were blown across the room and out into the hallway.

Ashland avenue, the principal thoroughfare of Woodland, was impassable on account of fallen trees Thursday morning. Several of the trees were twisted from their stumps. On North Ashland avenue fencing was destroyed in front of the Baptist Mission, and along the line of the Bullock property. A number of trees were blown down at Ashland, the old home of Henry Clay, and much damage is reported from the country along the Richmond and Nicholasville pikes. A large tobacco barn was blown down on the Preston place on the Richmond road.

Small Crop Of Burley In Indiana District.

Natural causes have contributed to a small crop of tobacco to be grown this year in the Burley section of Indiana—those counties lying along the Ohio River. Last winter, talk of a doubled or even quadrupled acreage was indulged in, but all of those prognostications have come to naught, and it appears that the largest part of Indiana's 1908 tobacco crop was raised around the firesides and by the stoves in the village stores last winter. There really has not been a good tobacco season this spring, and plants have not been any too plentiful or of very good quality. Indiana has suffered from night riders, and really owes the failure to raise a larger crop to the unfavorable natural conditions of and the lack of inclination on the part of their owners. Indirectly probably this lack of inclination is in a measure due to the apprehension regarding the opposition the raising of a crop might arouse. Tobacco plant beds have been sown in the Indiana hills in plain view from the Kentucky side, yet the growers of these plants have not been molested and it seems improbable that they will be.—Warsaw Independent.

Acts Of 1908 Nearly Ready For Distribution.

On account of a strike of job printers in Louisville, the acts of the last Legislature have not been bound yet, and Charles Morris, of the Attorney General's office, who has charge of the publication of the acts, will go to Louisville Saturday to inspect the first bound volume. It is expected that the acts will be ready for distribution by the middle of next week, when Frank Kavanaugh, the State Librarian, will have several hundred copies. The lawyers and clerks over the State have been sending in their money for the acts for the last six weeks and some of them have written several letters to know why they have not received the acts. Some of them intimated that they had given up all hope of getting any acts or their money. The strike caused the delay, but the orders for the books will be filled within the next few days.

We strive hard to produce printing of the better quality, and have confidence in the ability of the buying public to judge and its willingness to appreciate. Send us a trial order today.

We will call and show you samples of any kind of printing. Use either phone, No. 11.

BRYAN EASY.

Believes He Will Be Elected President

According To Confidential Information.

Frankfort Delegates Go To Big Convention.

GOOD SEATS FOR THE KENTUCKIANS

Frankfort's representatives at the big Democratic gathering in Denver left Frankfort Friday morning and left Louisville that night, so that they can be on the ground early to see Bryan nominated. They went with hopeful feeling. They are all united now, but, as Mr. Dooley says, they may be friends going out and fight after they get there, be friends out there, and fight on the way back. At any rate, Mr. Bryan believes he is going to win. Percy Haly said before he left that he had information from a man who had talked to Bryan and Bryan was absolutely confident of his election this fall.

The following went from here to Denver: Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and Senator Thomas H. Paynter, delegates from the State at large; Percy Haly, who turned down a chance to go with a millionaire in a private car in order to go with his friends from Kentucky; Judge Robert L. Stout, George Shaw and Field McLeod.

The Committee on Arrangements completed its work allotting the convention seats. Mr. Woodson, the Democratic National Committeeman from Kentucky, chose for the twenty-eight Kentucky delegates a position in the center of the auditorium immediately in front of the presiding officer. The Kentuckians will have the eighth and ninth rows of the center division, immediately behind the Indiana and Illinois delegates.

The Denver hall decorations, which have been in completion over a week, were added to today by the placing of a large crepe-draped portrait of Grover Cleveland, Washington Jefferson, Jackson and Cleveland are the four Democrats who are to look upon the proceedings. Cleveland's likeness was placed in the convention hall at the request of Mr. Dahlman, of Nebraska.

It's a secret, but when Bryan is nominated there is to drop down from the roof of the auditorium a 40x40 Bryan banner.

With 9,000 pints of wine and 35,000 bottles of beer, the good Indians of Tammany, Denver hears, will leave New York in five special trains, each train receiving its fair proportion.

The Denver grocery stores say they are fully able to cope with the situation. Being the most hospitable of hosts, they readily forgive this "carrying of coals to Newcastle" on the ground that most of Missouri and all of Kansas is prohibition territory, and unless arrangements are made in advance the Pullman sleepers in those States are as dry as a covered bridge.

The New York delegates to the Denver convention will not write the party's platform. It will be written by the Democrats of Maine and Texas, of Florida and Washington. The resolutions concerning Mr. Cleveland, containing a slap at the party, will not be adopted by the convention. The so-called radical wing of the party is willing to pay Mr. Cleveland the respect that is due him, but they draw the line when it comes to Murphy and Conners, always hand-in-glove with Parsons and Woodruff, presenting a set of resolutions uncalled for and serving only as means to provoke dissection in an otherwise harmonious gathering.

LARGE SALES OF CATTLE.

The month of June just closed saw the largest movement in cattle, hogs and sheep in the Louisville yards in thirty-two years. The stockmen see in the movement the beginning of a great market in Louisville. From official figures, which have been compiled, the movement was as follows: Received—Cattle, 11,839; calves, 2,977; hogs, 73,208; sheep, 108,306. Shipped—Cattle, 6,855; calves, 1,028; hogs, 51,070; sheep, 92,955.

Will Submit Plans For New Building.

FEEDLE MINDED INSTITUTE WILL HAVE MORE ROOM WITHIN A SHORT TIME.

The State Board of Control of Charitable Institutions will meet in Frankfort next Thursday, when plans for the new building at the Feeble Minded Institute will be submitted to the board for approval or rejection. The building will cost about $35,000 and will fill a long felt need in that it will give the children in the institute more room and will do away with the double-decked sleeping arrangements now in effect there.

The board has employed Walter A. Stearns, supervising engineer of the Louisville & Nashville railroad as engineer to overhaul the heating plants at Lakeland and Lexington, and at the meeting on Thursday he will submit plans for the repair of the plants. The recent Legislature appropriated $50,000 for this work and the heating plants will be put in first class order.
